The Massachusetts Republican State Convention

WORCESTER, Sept. 10.—The Republican State Convention was called for half past 11 o'clock and the special train from Boston brought a number of delegates about that hour. Many of the more prominent champions in the contest were parading the corridors of Mechanics Hall at the appointed time, unable to obtain admission. Hoar was on the ground early. His face wore a look of serenity and satisfaction. He was applauded as he passed up the hall. Gen. Butler arrived at the hall at a quarter-past eleven, and was loudly cheered by the [illegible]. The [illegible] at the doors was tremendous. The police finally got an order to throw them open. It appears the delay arose from a sifting process by the Committee on Credentials. At ten minutes past twelve, it was announced by Rice to the impatient [illegible] that the Committee wished to get through its work shortly, but until then they must wait. Butler delegates gave three cheers for their favorite, in response to which the General stepped upon the platform, made a bow and [illegible] a perfectly deafening ovation. The [illegible] was attired in black and looked anything but despondent as he stood chatting [illegible]. The Convention was called to order at 1 o'clock, P. M., by G. B. Loring, Chairman of the State Central Committee, [illegible] temporary Chairman. Ex-Gov. Bullock was elected permanent Chairman, and addressed the Convention. At the conclusion of his remarks a recess was taken till 2:45 P. M.

The time of the game was one hour and fifty minutes. Slosson's largest runs were 363 in the 3d inning, 444 in the 4th and 534 in the 6th. His average was 142.

He accompanied District Attorney Arthur [illegible] Caldwell parish [illegible] Columbia [illegible] their return to Winnsboro Monday morning. When twelve [illegible] west of Winnsboro, they were waylaid by four men lying in ambush in the [illegible] of a thicket, of several miles in extent, and murdered in cold blood. Judge Crawford was shot in five places in the head and body and it is [illegible] struggled with his assassins, as his head was badly bruised and [illegible]. Harris was shot in the back of the head and in the thigh. His horse was shot from under him. It is thought the murders were perpetrated by a party of desperadoes known as "Tom Winn's gang." The leader of their party was tried at the last term of the Court, before Judge Crawford, at Columbia for murder and convicted, he being prosecuted at the time by District Attorney Harris. A VISIT TO NEW WESTMINSTER

[FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 1, 1873.

The steamer Enterprise, owned by the Hudson Bay Co., leaves Victoria twice a week for New Westminster. The distance is eighty miles. The latter town is fifteen miles up the Fraser river. The Enterprise is a strong and comfortable steamer. A reliable and agreeable Captain, obliging officers and a good table add much to the pleasure of the trip.

Much as the waters and scenery of the Sound are to be admired and enjoyed they are equalled if not surpassed in all their aspects as the Straits of Juan de Fuca is left behind and the San Juan Island, the Sidney, James, Moresby, Prevost, Admiral and the almost innumerable other islands that form this group are approached. The numerous channels, such as the Canal de Haro, the Miners, Sidney, Cordova, Sattelite, and the Swanson or main channel on this steamer's course, the numerous bays, inlets, headlands, mountain ranges and snow peaks in the distance go to make up a combination of water, island and mountain scenery that for variety, beauty and grandeur could not be easily surpassed and will be the admiration of visitors for all time.

In leaving this sublime scene of the Creator's handiwork the Gulf of Georgia is reached through the Active Passage, where there is a powerful current and not room for more than two large steamers to pass each other.

THE GULF OF GEORGIA

Is crossed at an angle in reaching Fraser river. The distance is fifteen miles. This gulf has to the inexperienced more the aspect of an open sea than a gulf. Strong tides run in the gulf and rise high. Strong winds frequently blow making large waves and heavy swells. Although a head wind blew the gulf was crossed with ease and comfort and the celebrated

FRASER RIVER

Entered with considerable excitement and great pleasure on the part of the passengers. The entrance to this famous river is well defined by a light-ship and the channel well marked by large buoys. The river is several miles wide for a considerable distance. Sturgeon Bank and Roberts Bank, one on each side of the channel at the mouth of the river, are immense mud flats that are bare when the tide is out but covered with water when the tide flows. None of these mud flats interfere with navigation at high water. The steamer Enterprise can enter at all periods of the tide.

This river is navigable to Yale, a distance of one hundred and ten miles. In breadth and depth of water so far as I have yet seen of the river it is much superior to the Willamette river and very little inferior to the Columbia river. From all I can learn and what I soon expect to witness, the scenery of the headlands on its banks through the Cascade Range for ninety miles is as bold and grand, to say the least, as any part of the Upper Columbia river, and that is saying much. The rapids in several places are considerable but the steamer Enterprise is always equal to the occasion.

THE BOTTOM LANDS

That connect with the mud flats and extend far into the interior are of great extent. The soil is very deep, rich and productive. Competent judges say that there are at least 400,000 acres of these bottom lands waiting to be surveyed, occupied, ditched and cultivated, that will one day, not far hence, under the guiding hands of intelligent, industrious and enterprising settlers, reward such equal to any soil on the Pacific coast. There are now several large and successful farmers on portions of these bottom lands that produce from 50 to 70 bushels of wheat to the acre. Oats and barley are equally productive. All kinds of vegetables and roots grow to perfection. I saw samples of wheat and oats with straw six feet long that produced 70 bushels of each to the acre with comparatively imperfect cultivation. The milk and butter are rich and delicious. The beef and mutton raised on the same kind of grass cannot easily be surpassed. The first sound of the locomotive on the Canadian Pacific Railroad will act like the blast of Gabriel's trumpet in producing a resurrection of the individual and united energies of the people and call into activity the industries and [illegible] of a multitude of steady and permanent immigrants more numerous and valuable than the rush of 1858 or 18[illegible]. British Columbia will then completely emancipate itself as it is now gradually doing from the torpor produced by the old [illegible] legislation of Downing Street and advance to the front rank [illegible] vigorous and prosperous province of the Dominion.

THE TOWN OF NEW WESTMINSTER

Was the capital of the colony of British Columbia from 1858 to 186[illegible]. The Governor and his staff resided here during that time. In 186[illegible] the Colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia united under one Governor and became the colony of British Columbia. During the month of July, 1871, this colony united with and became one of the provinces of the Dominion of Canada. The town [illegible] growth were very much the result of the rush to the gold diggings on Fraser river in 1858 and 18[illegible]. As many as 30,000 [illegible] passed through this town to the [illegible] in 1858, and there were not less than [illegible] living at New Westminster during that excitement. [illegible] 1862 when another rush came from [illegible].

[illegible] the general aspect of prosperity [illegible] moderate growth. Front street [illegible] along the river and [illegible] of the town are very well [illegible] more than usually clean, neat and [illegible]. [illegible] stores, such as Mr. Webster, Mr. Holbrook, Mr. Cunningham's, Major [illegible], a branch of the Dominion Government Savings Bank and a [illegible] House lately built which adorns the center [illegible] of the town. [illegible] the Church of England Cathedral, with its charming chapel, the four other churches and as many Sunday schools meet the religious wants of the people. [illegible] where the education is strictly [illegible] and a number of private schools are efficient for the literary and moral training of the young. The Roman Catholic Church has a religious service for the Indians on Sunday [illegible] o'clock. There were 52 Indians—men, women and children—present last Sunday; they paid marked attention to the clergyman's address and were well and neatly dressed. The chief and his staff sat on benches, and the others on mats on the floor. The press is well and ably represented by the [illegible] Herald, edited by Messrs. Brown & Hughes, and by the Mainland Guardian, edited by Mr. J. K. Suter. There are some beautiful cottages on the rising ground back of the business part of the town surrounded with elegant fruit and flower gardens, where the merchants reside. Among this number is Mr. James Cunningham, Mayor of the town, being elected two years in succession to that office. He is brother to Messrs. T. & W. Cunningham, hardware merchants of Salem.

THE INDIANS

It is very gratifying to find that the Indians in British Columbia are quiet and industrious, find plenty of employment at remunerative wages—fill places of trust, and are frequently employed on express messages with large sums of money. The strict discipline exercised over them by the Hudson Bay Company in the olden time, followed by the British and Colonial Governments with ample protection to person and property, just remuneration for labor done, and sure and swift punishment for offenses or crimes committed, thereby placing them before the law on the same footing as white men, are among the primary causes that have produced this satisfactory state of matters among the Indians—not forgetting the moral power exercised for good by the religious teaching of the Roman Catholics, Methodists and Protestant Episcopalians. On the 24th of last June—the Queen's birthday—there were 3,000 Indians assembled in New Westminster enjoying a grand holiday. They were neatly dressed, their conduct was most orderly; they took a prominent part in the canoe races and the many other sports and games of the day. They marched through the town in procession in good order led by their own band of music. Not an accident occurred or unpleasant circumstance took place to mar the harmonies and happiness of the day. Many [illegible] but indolent people are of opinion that little can be done to civilize or christianize Indians, but the conduct of the British Government, aided by the Colonial authorities, in thoroughly protecting the person and property of the Indians, in severely and swiftly punishing any who may injure them, and the moral and religious training by the Roman Catholic priests and Methodist clergymen in particular, are plain and obvious evidences that the Indians of British Columbia, at least, are capable of great moral improvement and of being elevated to the height of exemplary Christians.

American Indian agents, inspectors, contractors, traders, peace commissioners, and the vast horde of land sharks connected with the Indian Department, when will you cease to cheat, rob and plunder the Indians of the United States, and heap up for yourselves the crimes of two generations and draw down upon the heads of your children the blood of an oppressed, spoiled and expiring race? The vast amount of political corruption that pervades every class of politicians in the States and extends from the men who sell their vote at the primaries for a drink of whisky or the price of a day's work, to the Senators who barter theirs for a gift of stock in some railroad or other scheme, may be said to be conceived, cradled and matured in the Indian Department—its varied ramifications and among its almost innumerable agents, who, like a cloud of locusts, consume what was intended as a beneficent and magnificent gift on the part of the nation to a race that deserves its ample protection and most humane, benevolent and Christian consideration. The Indians of British Columbia number three to one of the white population. The white population is about 10,000, the Indians number 30,000. The latter are paid at lumber mills, on ranches, fishing, and other employments $20 a month and board. When employed by the day they are paid a dollar. Quite a number of them are in responsible situations and are paid $30 a month and board.

SALMON FISHING AT NEW WESTMINSTER

This is one of the important industries of British Columbia, but like all its other natural interests very imperfectly developed. There are four runs of salmon in the Fraser river from April to November. The first two are the best and the only salmon that are canned for exporting. There is a good run every year, but about every third year the number is almost incredible. The season just closed has been one of the most successful for many years.

New Westminster is one of the leading points on the Fraser river for salmon fishing. Loggie & Co. have put up this season 60,000 one pound cans and 2,000 two pound cans; they get for the former $9 a case of four dozen and $7 a case for the latter containing two dozen. A. Ewen & James Wise have put up 1,000 barrels of salmon each, for which they get a ready market at the Sandwich Islands and the Australian Colonies that net from $7 to $10 a barrel of 200 lbs. If there had been capital and conveniences for curing salmon this season at Westminster there could have been canned 2,000,000 cans and 50,000 barrels. The Indians are the chief fishermen, for which they are paid $1 per day. As many as 350 salmon have been caught by one canoe in four hours.

BURRARD INLET

Is one of the many interesting places in British Columbia to visit. The entrance is fifteen miles north of Fraser river. It is reached overland from New Westminster by a first class stage on an equally fine road nine miles [illegible]. The inlet is a [illegible] water twenty five miles long and an average of one mile in breadth. Vessels of the largest [illegible] can enter. There is safe anchorage for five hundred ships. Messrs. Moody, Deitz & Nelson, at Moodyville, near the head of this inlet, have one of the largest sawmills in British Columbia. From small beginnings in 1862 they have worked their way up by untiring industry, indomitable perseverance, business capacity, financial integrity and generous liberality to the top of the ladder in their line. They now cut 50,000 feet of lumber in twelve hours and 75,000 feet in twenty four hours. They are enlarging their mill to [illegible] cut [illegible] feet in twelve hours and 100,000 feet in twenty-four hours. They are cut off from the San Francisco market by the United States duty on foreign lumber. Their principal markets are Australia, New Zealand, South America, China, Sandwich Islands and Mexico. [illegible] most perfect state, free from all blemishes that [illegible] above any lumber shipped from the Sound to these ports.

They have loaded forty vessels for foreign ports during the last twelve months, run the mill night and day for the last nine months and [illegible] for every two they have loaded. Mr. Moody is the managing partner, Mr. Hughes is the [illegible] manager, Mr. Chambers is the head book keeper and the superintendent [illegible]. The [illegible] spars as were ever sent to a foreign port. [illegible] responsible [illegible] of the business [illegible] the [illegible]

SALEM CORRESPONDENCE

SALEM, Sept. 8, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

[illegible] the business of [illegible] and every branch of business now assumes a more cheerful aspect and the money market has evidently relaxed its rigorous grasp and allowed its golden store to appear as a circulating medium. Wheat as I write is selling at [illegible] cents per bushel and will beyond a doubt reach its paying and proper figure—one dollar—before half of your readers will read this letter.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE

Is now about finished and the scaffolding has been removed, allowing the building to stand forth displaying all its architectural beauty—but evidently there would have been much added to its imposing appearance if the foundation walls had been raised at least two feet higher, but I don't propose to growl about that now.

Workmen are now busy placing our

2,000 POUND FIRE BELL

In position and probably we will be favored with the sound of its resonant tones in fire alarms for the purpose of giving the boys a run.

EDUCATIONAL

The various public and private schools have commenced their fall terms. The Willamette University opened with good prospect this morning, and as that University justly stands high the different professors are determined to maintain its standing.

PACIFIC COAST SERIES

Your correspondent unintentionally has created a great hubbub by mentioning the fact that a series of books, compiled on this coast, had been adopted for the use of the common schools of this State. The reason I alluded to the matter was, I believed that it would entail a great expense upon the people of Oregon unnecessarily, and as a citizen of this State of more than a quarter of a century standing I felt that the people, who are most directly interested, should have full knowledge of the amount they will soon be called upon to pay in the way of increased expenses for new school books. Probably it would prove of interest to the people to know how these text books were adopted. The law creating the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction makes it his duty, under the direction of the State Board of Education, to issue a circular to each County Superintendent, containing a list of studies required to be taught in the public schools, and each Superintendent, after due consideration, to write opposite each study the text book preferred, and to transmit such circular, fully answered, to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who shall cause the same to be laid before the State Board of Education, and the text book in any branch receiving the highest number of votes shall be the authorized text book in the public schools of this State for the four years next succeeding the official announcement of the Superintendent, and if two or more text books receive the same and the highest number of votes the Superintendent shall decide which shall be used.

So much for the law. Now, as I am reliably informed, the State Board at a meeting in February, was asked to adopt a prepared list submitted by the Superintendent of Public Instruction immediately after its organization, without any time being given to make inquiries of the different County Superintendents. One of the [illegible] here, called by the Board for consultation, strenuously opposed the move, and wished a circular to be issued first, and then make the selection, but was so much opposed, that the gentleman resigned, after which the series was adopted by one vote, and that cast by a member who, I am informed, never taught school. A circular was issued and sent to the different County Superintendents recapitulating that the within series had been approved by the State Board and submitted to their examination, and in the blanks thus prepared, the series of readers was omitted. And as all County Superintendents had one vote, without regard to the number of scholars or the amount of money to be drawn—thus a frontier county with only one, or, at most a half dozen schools, could dictate the series entirely independent of the desires of the most populous counties, and, as a natural [illegible] the counties which do not [illegible] a nominal salary to their Superintendents, were not alive to the interest of the subject, consequently they voted for the books named, without considering the consequences, but acted merely under the influence of the State Board.

Now for another view of the subject. Some time last winter a San Francisco gentleman applied to a gentleman who holds a high political position in this State and requested him to write or compile a Pacific coast series of school books. He declined, but referred him to the present State Superintendent, and he in turn referred him to his brother, S. L. Simpson. The latter was employed to compile these books, in conjunction with Dr. Patterson. These gentlemen are to receive from the publishing house ten per cent on the gross sales—a very nice and agreeable arrangement. This is creating a 'grinding monopoly,' one house only being allowed to publish them, and of course they can and most probably will add from 10 to 25 per cent to the present low price in six months after the schools have commenced to supply themselves. Mr. Simpson says that $3 75 is all that will be charged unless there should be a general rise in such school books. This is a rope of sand keeping in check an establishment that can set its own price without any reserve whatever. Not long since California adopted a series of books for that State, but the manner in which it was accomplished was entirely different. There the publishing houses made the offer that if their series were adopted, they would give to each [illegible] one without any charge whatever, and one house spent $40,000 to have their series adopted. By this means the entire State was supplied without a cent being laid out by those who have to purchase the books for the children. There are at least

TWENTY THOUSAND CHILDREN

In this State, and to supply them with one set of books will cost $75,000, and the books purchased for the term just commenced throughout the State will be in a manner a dead loss, and for four years the amount of $150,000 can safely be calculated upon, and for works not superior, but in many respects inferior to the Eastern publications. The reason that your correspondent is not in favor of adopting this series is that I am thoroughly convinced from an examination of the books [illegible] that the matter is inferior to Eastern publications and we propose to use a series of books written especially for a State that has no more numerous population than some counties in Massachusetts or New York. It is as if it were proposed in either of those States that a certain county should use only a certain series, that the literature of that county should write and thus be snatched from threatened oblivion. And I am opposed to the State of Oregon being compelled to purchase books for the benefit of a selected few [illegible] of the State Superintendent, [illegible].

[illegible] correspondence of Mr. Simpson, all I have to say is that he displayed [illegible] when Mrs. S[illegible] [illegible]

From the Olympia Courier of September 9th: 'We are informed by T. M. Reed, Grand Secretary, that a dispensation has this day been issued from his office by authority of the Grand Master for a new Masonic Lodge at Colfax, Whitman county, W. T., under the name of Hiram Lodge. J. P. Edmiston has been appointed W. Master, Philip Tents S. Warden, and H. S. Hollingsworth J. Warden.'

THE TERRITORIES

Boise City is at present crowded with visitors—some with a view to permanent settlement.

The bark Sunset on her next trip from Tacoma to San Francisco, will take over a million laths.

The railroad bridge over the Nisqually river was finished three or four days ago, and the first train has passed over.

Louis Levin, of Tacoma, who accidentally shot himself with a small pistol ten days ago, has so far recovered as to be able to get out. A week or two more will find him well as usual.

Reuben Roberts, of Olympia, fell under the influence of the green-eyed monster and administered a sound cudgeling to his better-half. Reuben was sent up for sixty days. Correct.

It is rumored that the Wide West mine, at Rocky Bar, Idaho, owned by McNally & Thomas, has been purchased by some San Francisco capitalists — consideration not known.

From the Idaho World of September 4th: "They had several alarms of fire in Idaho City last week, one broke out in Dr. Healy's office, and one in Mr. C. S. Kingsley's new residence. All were extinguished without any damage."

The Graham mill and arastra, at Rocky Bar, Idaho, owned by the Valley G. M. Co., of New York, Col. Samuel Ward Superintendent, is about completed and ready to commence crushing ore, either for themselves or custom work.

James McCrory, while at work in one of Ben Wilson's mining claims, near Pioneer City, on the 3d inst., had his leg broken by the caving of a bank. He was taken to Idaho City, where the limb was set and he is now doing well.

The Tacoma Tribune of September 6th says: 'A man named Ward Silley, 35 years of age, born in Maine, and a lumberman by occupation, fell dead yesterday morning in a logging camp on Port Susan Bay, in Snohomish county. Silley was a former resident of Pistco county.'

From the Idaho Statesman of September 6th: "Mr. J. H. Whitson, four miles from town, on the Stewart Gulch farm, has raised this year 601 bushels of barley from ten acres of land, which weighs fifty pounds to the bushel. His wheat averaged twenty-eight and four-fifths bushels to the acre."

Accurate calculations develop the fact that base bullion from Utah mines cannot be profitably shipped under the new railroad tariff, and unless a modification of rates can be secured with regard to this particular class of freight, the effect will be to cripple, if not to ruin, this branch of mining industry.

From the Olympia Courier of September 9th: "The following is the business of the U. S. Land Office in Olympia for the month of August. Pre-emption filings, 72; homesteads commuted, 28[illegible]40 acres; final certificates in pre-emption entries, 2,151 acres; private entry, 50½ acres; donations commuted, 321 20 acres."

The Kalama Beacon of September 8th says: 'We understand that Colonel F. A. Bee, for the Olympia Railway and Coal Mining Co., previous to leaving for San Francisco a couple of weeks ago, made arrangements for four lots fronting the river in the vicinity of the car shop, where he intends to erect a coal wharf for his company.'

From the Idaho Statesman of September 6th: 'There is some talk of adopting the greenback currency as a basis of trade in our city. It is not likely that every man will come into it at first, but any one of the three heaviest mercantile houses can bring it about with the help of others that will fall in. The man that tries it will secure an unprecedented run of trade, provided the other houses hold on for coin.'

The Pittsburgh & Idaho G. M. Co., are still hard at work on the Ada Elmore, at Rocky Bar, Idaho, night and day, and taking out ore that pays over $100 to the ton. They have one of the best mines on the coast. They contemplate sinking a shaft soon, to the depth of 300 feet. They are crushing in the old Waddingham mill owned by Wahl Brothers of Chicago. Their last clean up, a few days ago, from 45 tons was $6,000.

The St. Louis Democrat, July 12, says: 'Mr. A. G. LaBarge, clerk of the steamer DeSmet, exhibited some wonderful rye on 'Change yesterday, which he brought down from Helena, Montana Territory. The grains are as long as shoe pegs and are plump and of light mahogany color. It was grown in Montana near Helena, and is called there goose eye.' Secretary Lorgan bottled up a sample of it and will keep it for exhibition."

The Idaho Statesman of Sept. 6th has this weather item: Mr. Fouch and several farmers from down the valley, say that the storm on Monday afternoon was very severe. It rained harder than ever known before since the settlement of the valley. No serious damage was done, although grain is badly wet, and makes a good deal of work in handling it over and getting it dry. Hauling and stacking will be postponed in consequence for nearly a week.

Isaac C. Derrick, one of the owners in the [illegible] has sold his interest (one-third) to his partner, Geo. F. Settle, for fifteen hundred dollars. This is the property Drs. Wagner & Bishop tried so hard to sell in London, but failed to realize anything but forfeit money. This was a wonderful falling off in the price, as the owners were to receive, had the sale been fully consummated, some fifty thousand dollars in money and some stock.

The Idaho World for last week says that Maj. R. E. Foote and James McDevitt have returned from Lemhi and report good crops in Lemhi valley and considerable mining and times lively in Lemhi county. Quartz interests are looking up, and while they were there the ledge owned by Michael Spahn and several others was sold for $25,000, and the new company are going to put up new machinery at once. Judge Beatty is the owner of a very valuable lode in that county.

From the Tacoma Tribune of September 6th: A Chinaman was brought into town last night from one of the railroad camps, who had been badly treated by a brother Celestial. The injured man had some money which the other coveted, and in robbing him of it cut him in both hands and the throat. The cutting occurred several days ago, and the Chinaman's wounds received no attention whatever. The flies got at them and the unfortunate fellow is said to be afflicted with maggots in consequence. He was taken to Seattle to-day.

From the Kalama Beacon of September 8th: In our last we published a letter from Mr. John H. Timmons, of Lewis river, in regard to a low pass across the Cascades between the head of Lewis river and Simcoe Valley east of the mountains. Mr. Timmons and a party started about a week since to verify the supposed discovery and are expected back on Saturday next. Mr. Asa S. Aldrich, William Kern Sr. and Eldon Kern, of Kalama, are of the party. Mr. Aldrich goes along as the scientific man, being provided with an aneroid barometer and two or three other 'fixins.'

From the Idaho Statesman of September 6th: Hank Clark, of Horseshoe Bend, made us a call yesterday and gave an interesting account of the storm and a water spout, which occurred in his vicinity on last Monday. He says about 1 o'clock in the afternoon the clouds began to rise and soon thickened up very black, with considerable rolling thunder and occasional flashes of lightning, accompanied by furious gusts of wind, and soon began to pour down heavy rain. On Lynch & Miner's farm, on the other side of the Payette, and farther down toward Emmettville, it came down in torrents, doing considerable damage to crops. Six miles above the Bend, at a place called Jerusalem, where Mr. T. D. Brainard has a ranch, or a little above him on the divide or backbone of a high ridge that runs up to the summit, between the Payette and Boise Basin, the clouds appeared to concentrate and the water fell in massive sheets, or, as Mr. Brainard describes it, three great waves of water fell from the clouds and dashed upon the earth, and then rushed down the gulch, carrying debris and heavy rocks on to Mr. Brainard's [illegible], covering up some of his farming land several feet deep. As it approached his barn and stock-yard, the gravel and sand was pushed ahead of the water, which formed a sort of embankment or dam around his yard and buildings, and the water passed by without any injury to his buildings, but his vegetable and land was washed out and covered up in a [illegible] manner. He estimates his damage at $300. Mr. Clark says Brainard's squashes and corn were seen running down the Payette for two days.'

The Governor has appointed E. DePeatt, of Ashland, a Notary Public for Jackson county.

Rev. S. Bowers and family, of Salem, will leave Oregon this week to reside in California.

The fall term of the Willamette University opened Monday with [illegible] one hundred and fifty pupils being in attendance. The excellent [illegible] of this school is [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] of the public [illegible].

Judge Shepherd, of the Bedrock Democrat, says he is going to [illegible] after, so as to give the [illegible] up to [illegible] day. This is going a little fast for a weekly. Baker City must be getting ahead quite fast about these days, to have two [illegible] of a weekly, and soon to have two weeklies.

The [illegible] out [illegible] by a man and his wife in [illegible] who took two little [illegible] to [illegible] and after keeping them awhile, it was [illegible] that they were beating the children [illegible] with whips and [illegible]. Such [illegible] ought to be driven beyond the pale of [illegible] in tar and feathers.

The Salem Statesman says: "The [illegible] for the farmers brightens every day. [illegible] has gradually [illegible] until [illegible] it was stiff at 95 cents. The [illegible] it will in a few [illegible] advance to $1. [illegible] have done well, those who have yet to sell [illegible] done better, if they [illegible] daily [illegible] very actively just now. At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, we noticed several [illegible] mill either [illegible]."

[illegible] Judge Horace Gray has been appointed to the Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, [illegible] made vacant by the death of Judge Chapman. The appointment had been previously tendered by Gov. Washburn to Hon. E. Rockwood Hoar, [illegible].

THURSDAY MORNING SEPT 11 1873

THE DUTY OF TO-DAY

To-day at 2 o'clock the Republican State Convention will assemble at Albany for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress. The duty devolved upon this Convention is of great moment. The selection of a candidate is a very delicate task. There have been such dissensions in the party that no success is possible with a man who is especially obnoxious to any portion of the party. Success can only be achieved with a standard bearer who has not been so intimately connected with one faction as to excite the opposition of the other. The Convention must therefore rise above the personal or local strifes among its members and act for the good of the whole or its defeat is certain.

Any resolutions endorsing the course of one wing of the party and condemning that of the other or attempting to make a character for men who have forfeited theirs will prove a fatal mistake. We know such resolution is contemplated by the friends of Senator Mitchell. The Bulletin, his organ, has declared it must be passed. The Convention will do as it pleases, but it must not expect to get the Republican party to follow it into such an approval of the worst social crimes that it is possible to commit. We are told the Senator wants especially a resolution, declaring him to have sustained an excellent character ever since he came to Oregon. Before this certificate of character is signed by the party it would be well to inquire carefully into the facts. The records of Multnomah county show that he married his present wife in Portland in February, 1862, the date fixed both by his former partner and his former wife, for his divorce from the latter is 1867—five years after his marriage here. It would be very embarrassing to any candidate to have to run on a platform declaring this to be honorable conduct. It would also be difficult to explain his living here under a false name for nearly thirteen years, except by supposing there was some grave cause for such deception. It is evident he himself regarded his conduct as unjustifiable, for as soon as he was discovered he went into Court and asked to have his name changed so as to make his alias his true name. We trust the Convention will not allow themselves to be hoodwinked into an affirmative indorsement of this sort of thing, and thus lend themselves to the defeat of the party to shield one of its members from the natural consequences of his own wrongs. A Senator who has to bolster up his private character by a resolution of his party, is in a most unenviable position surely.

We entertain no personal ill will toward our Senator, and would not refer to his derelictions, were it not that the honor of the State, and especially of the Republican party, is involved in the matter. But we think the right course and the only right course to be pursued, is to leave the Senator's "youthful indiscretions" out of the authoritative action of the State Convention, and let every man judge of the case for himself. Thus only it will be prevented from distracting the party, and depriving its candidate of many votes on election day.

THE COLUMBIA COUNTY TRICK

The Chairman of the Columbia County Central Committee is known to be a Hippleite. This accounts for his failing to call a County Convention. No Convention has been called in that county, but the Chairman of the Committee, with a half dozen of the [illegible] Sydney, got together clandestinely and resolved themselves into a [illegible] meeting, and then proceeded to pass a series of resolutions, the substance of which is that John Hipple is just the kind of a man they are, and that anybody who does not regard seduction, bigamy, embezzlement, running under a false name, and the like, as proper and highly moral, is totally unfit to go to Congress in search of his "cousin," or to hold an office so "yieldy" as that of Commissioner to the Cannibal Islands. Here are the resolutions:

Resolved, That we deeply regret that any portion of the Republican party should at this time throw a firebrand into the party about our Senator, Hon John H Mitchell or any [illegible] the [illegible], the honor and the integrity of the party.

Resolved, That as Mr Mitchell has resided among us for 13 years, sustaining all that time an unblemished moral character, we have full and undiminished confidence in him as a [illegible], and as an able and honorable United States Senator.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with him on account of the malicious and unjust [illegible] for some errors of his more youthful days, fully atoned [illegible] him, and should now be forgotten.

Resolved, That as Mr Mitchell is our Senator anything said or done to weaken his influence in the United State Senate is to that impolitic and unwise.

Resolved, That any Republican who shall introduce into any County or State Convention defamatory personalities which well or illy founded are calculated to produce contention strife or discord deserve the sternest rebuke of the party, and that all such persons should be regarded as factionists.

Resolved, That we have full and abiding confidence in the great national principles set forth by the Republican party, which have so nobly [illegible] Government in peace and in war, and we pledge our best efforts to an un[illegible].

This fraud will be heralded forth as the action of the Republicans of Columbia, when in fact the Republicans of the county were not notified of the meeting and were purposely kept in ignorance of the intended meeting of the secret conclave that passed these resolutions.

This same secret meeting chose one of their number, a person known in Oregon as James McBride, and the same who some years ago, being appointed Commissioner to the Hawaiian Islands, was so ignorant of geographical knowledge as to mortgage his farm for a spring wagon and pair of mules on which to make the journey from Oregon to Honolulu, to go as delegate to the State Convention. This man is no delegate of the Republicans of Columbia county. He is a fraud, and could no more have been chosen delegate, had a convention been regularly called, than he could go to Honolulu in a wagon drawn by a span of mules. But the Convention may admit him if the ring has a majority it will surely do so and if they have not it may do so for harmony's sake. He is a harmless old man if left alone because he does not know enough to be otherwise, but he is obedient to anybody he happens to be truckling to and will therefore be useful.

Scarcely had the astonishment caused by the enormous defalcations of the late E. S. Mills, President of the Brooklyn Trust Company subsided when it was discovered that M. F. Rodman, Deputy City Treasurer of Brooklyn was defaulter to the city in the sum of $250,000. There were at first vague hints that something was wrong and strangely enough when Rodman heard these rumors he left his country place where he was sojourning for his health and came to the city to show that he was not afraid of an investigation. Suspicion was not allayed quite as readily as he may have wished. An inquiry was ordered. Late New York exchanges furnish a complete history of his fraudulent operations which seem to have been carried on in a series of most reckless foolhardy ventures. Rodman was in a conspiracy with Mills. He invested large sums of money in stock and other speculations going on from bad to worse until he became hopelessly involved. Mr Sprague, City Treasurer, is either a very weak or very wicked man. He told the expert who examined his books that the people of Brooklyn had shown their implicit confidence in him by intrusting him with the charge of the public money and he was determined to be worthy of their trust and to make good before it gained publicity any defalcation there might be. At the same time he admitted that one year ago his deputy—this same Rodman—had stolen $55,000 which he (Sprague) was compelled to make good out of his own pocket. It is hard to reconcile Mr Sprague's plea of non-complicity in the later defalcations with the ugly fact that for more than a year he retained a thief in his employ knowing all the time that he was a thief on any ground other than the one suggested—that he is a fool. The Tribune says: No motive will justify a public official in continuing a confessed robber in the public service, as Mr Sprague certainly did Mr. Rodman, and he must expect to be set down as his accomplice. He has beggared himself of money in restoring what Rodman had stolen he cannot hope to settle his moral accountability so cheaply. Character is not so plentiful as money.

From accounts in our Eastern exchanges it appears quite probable that the recent terrible railroad disaster at Lemont was caused by a difference in the time of the watches carried by the engineers of the colliding trains. The engineer of the freight train alleges that his timepiece misled him. The St Paul Press says that the casualty has attracted public attention to a matter of the very last importance to all railroads—the securing of correct time to all their employees engaged in running trains. Every day and every hour the lives of thousands of passengers and the safety of millions of dollars worth of property are dependent upon the watches which are carried in the pockets of engineers and conductors. One road in this country—a model one in point of management—has recognized the importance of the subject and made the furnishing and regulating of engineers watches a part of its business. The Pennsylvania railroad includes a first-class timekeeper in the equipment of every one of its engines. This is purchased by the company and numbered with the number of the engine on which it is to be used. When that engine is sent out the watch is taken from the Superintendent's office and given to the engineer. When the engineer returns, the watch is also returned and hung up in its place in the office and while there it runs with the regulator in the office. If the watch gains or loses time it is adjusted and no watch is permitted to go out of the office without being in perfect order. This is a system which has due regard for the safety of life and property. It a system which every railway company would do well to adopt.

Credit Mobilier may be scotched but Credit Mobilierism is not killed and it is quite probable that its taint will exist for years to come. The latest development is given in the St Paul (Minn.) Press. It has come to light in a dispute between the Puget Sound Land Company and the Northern Pacific Railway Company over the location of the town of Bismarck. The former company in order to obtain possession of the best land in the vicinity of Burleigh (a town three and a-half miles south of Bismarck), placed a number of their employes on the land as is alleged with the understanding that they should transfer the titles to the company as soon as they could prove up. Certain settlers believing that, under the pre-emption law the agreement to transfer the titles would invalidate their rights also made pre-emption filings on the same lands. On attempting to prove up the Land Company's settlers found adverse claims, and it seems quite likely that the company will have considerable difficulty in getting titles to the land. It appears, moreover, that some time ago a proposition was made by the Northern Pacific to buy out the interest of the Puget Sound Company in all the town sites on the line. Some of the stockholders in the latter corporation objected and the matter hung fire. Now the Northern Pacific has withdrawn its proposition and has determined to lay out another Bismarck on a site within five blocks of the present town. This causes much hard feeling, and the Press seems to think it is the beginning of a long and bitter contest between the two companies.

As will be seen by the call of Mr. N. W. Garretson, Deputy, that Masters, Past Masters and Matrons of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry are requested to meet at Salem on Wednesday the 24th inst. for the purpose of organizing a State Grange with jurisdiction extending over this State and Washington Territory. This young order has grown with a rapidity unparalleled both in numbers and in moral power. The order is in no sense a political one but is devoted simply and solely to the social and individual welfare of farmers and their families. In other words it is a guild with an organized system of mutual relief and assistance similar to those upon which the various benevolent orders of recent origin are founded.

The Graphic has been sending out invitations to many well known gentlemen to join Prof. Wise in his balloon voyage across the Atlantic. One was sent to General Butler, [illegible] answered that in all probability he would soon be called on to assume grave Executive responsibilities in Massachusetts, adding, however that he might take a balloon voyage on his own hook with Worcester as a point of departure. Mr. Richard Grant White's response was quite as humorous:

It I could read my title clear
[illegible]
I'd bid farewell to every fear
And with [illegible] arise

Mr Donaldson's trial cruise from New York to Long Branch in the little paper boat that is to be taken on the transatlantic trip was a complete success. He made the trip in about five hours and did not ship a handful of water until the surf at Long Branch beach dashed over him. The steamer Plymouth Rock passed him on the voyage, and as he was using his paddle vigorously the band struck up "Paddle your own Canoe."

STATE GRANGE FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON

To Masters [illegible] Subordinate Granges [illegible] the Territory of Washington [illegible] with their wives who are Matrons, also Past Masters with their wives who are Matrons: You are hereby requested to meet in Salem, Oregon, at 10 o'clock A. M. on Wednesday, September 24, 1873, for the purpose of co-operating in the institution of a State Grange [illegible] Order of Patrons of Husbandry for the State of Oregon and Washington Territory.

By order of the Worthy Master of the National Grange, P. of H.

N. W. GARRETSON, Deputy.

September 11, 1873.

Several days since we alluded to the hostile attitude assumed by the Democracy of New York towards Liberal Republicans who seemed willing to co-operate with Democrats in the coming campaign in that State. The New York World has been strangely savage in its assaults on the Liberals, for which the Hartford Times takes it to task in the following, which may be said to be rather binding on the Metropolitan sheet: The World putting on airs which no true Democrat in this country would assume, denounces the Liberals and abuses them, and tries to weaken the Democratic ranks and to drive away those who from principle desire to act with Democrats. We believe that this is not the temper of the Democratic party. It is not its policy. It is neither just nor decent. But the World never was a true Democratic journal. It is only an adventurer, seeking personal fortune. Its counsels should not be regarded by Democrats.

It is stated that when the Federal officers of San Francisco saw in the afternoon of the day of election that it was impossible to elect the straight Republican ticket, they went to work in a body to secure the election of the regular Democratic ticket. Both these regular tickets were fixed up in the interest of the railway ring. That is exactly what the rings do everywhere. The same crowd of political wire pullers that run the Conventions of one party, frequently go over and run those of the other. Oregon is no exception. The same crowd that hang around and do the cheering, the button holing, the telegraphing, pipe-laying and vote-brokering at Republican Conventions in Portland were on hand at the Democratic Convention the other day busy, active and, if we judge by results, efficient.

The path to political preferment is rough and uneven; fortunes, is what induced a woman who wanted to be County Superintendent of Cass Co., Ill., to rise and explain as follows to wit: "We have been excessively annoyed by inquiries relative to the above matter, as well as by the look of disappointment that settles upon the Johnsons, Browns and Smiths, whenever we pass them without a campaign shake of the hand and a declaration of their offsprings' unusual precocity as evinced while we were their fortunate instructress. Nor is this all. Nay verily! Every Hans and Pat of street corner notoriety evidently expected us to stand treat."

P. T. Barnum has always been known as a liberal advertiser. His wonderful success in the show business may be traced thereto perhaps. He bought one page of every daily in St Louis the other day, paying out $30,000. His receipts were $70,000. Moral.

G. L. DePRANS,
Dear Sir:—The BURDETT ORGAN that I tried at your house, suits me better than any other reed instrument I ever heard. There is a variety and sweetness of tone in these instruments unsurpassed, and, in my opinion, and their popularity is very easily accounted for. FRANK GILDER,

CITY.

At Oswego.—The Oregon Iron Company have decided to start up their works at Oswego after a rest of two years. This, with the near completion of the Tualatin Navigation Company's improvements, has inspired new life into the place, and activity is now the order in all directions. The Iron Company, including some of our most enterprising citizens—among them Ladd, Failing, Burrell, Kelly, and other residents and some non-residents—having lately purchased ground for new rolling mills for the manufacture of the leading varieties of wrought iron, including rails, the iron property, to operate this in addition to running the large furnace already in working order. The Superintendent, being on his way, is expected here soon to start up in full blast. The hills in the vicinity lately prospected contain many rich deposits of iron ore till lately undiscovered, promising assurance of abundant supply, and hence a sure basis on which to rest the hopes of the capitalist. At present a large number of workmen are employed cutting wood, making coal, digging ore, etc. Soon the fine lumber mill of Kellogg & Co will be in operation, and the Navigation Company's canal in use, furnishing additional labor and activity. There is scarcely room for the present population. Not a house or room to let and not lumber enough to supply the demand. Many during the warm days camped out. If we are surprised at the thrift and activity there now, while these different industries are just beginning, what may we not expect when they are all in full blast?

In addition to the above, Dr Atkinson has let the contract to erect a Congregational church there, with library or reading room attachment. But space forbids to enumerate other items of interest connected with the present activity at Oswego. But suffice it to say this is called the Pittsburg of Oregon.

Death of Mr. Ach.—Leon Ach, who was so suddenly stricken down with paralysis on last Wednesday evening, died on Tuesday night. From the moment of the attack until his death, Mr Ach never spoke a word. During the time he suffered much, and was continually surrounded by his friends, and attended by three physicians, but all of no avail. Mr Ach was born in France. At an early age he came to the United States and settled in New Orleans, where by perseverance, energy and industry, he became a leading merchant. He was an intimate friend of Gen Zachary Taylor, from whom he obtained the contract of furnishing the Louisiana Volunteers with supplies during the Mexican war in 1846. After the war Mr Ach established mercantile houses in Tampico and Vera Cruz. On account of internal troubles in Mexico and the unsettled state of affairs he came to California in 1850, where he established one of the first business houses in San Francisco. Like many others Mr Ach suffered heavily by flood and fire until that for which he had toiled so long to obtain disappeared. In 1862, Mr Ach came to Portland almost without means. By his industrious efforts he succeeded in working himself up again. He was a man of generous impulses, a kind father and husband, and an exemplary citizen. Mr Ach was a Mason of 35 years standing. His family and friends have the kindest sympathy of the community.

Sloop Wrecked.—Early on Tuesday morning, the sloop John Fr[illegible] was wrecked near Chinook Spit, below Astoria. About 80 cords of ash wood were placed on board the sloop above Vancouver and that craft taken in tow by the little Wasp, bound for Cape Disappointment, at which place the wood was to be discharged. Some distance above Astoria, the sloop was taken in tow by the Merrimac. On the way down, the tow-line was parted several times, and the tug and sloop were separated by the wind. The third time the line broke the sloop was carried on the spit. As the tug came up alongside to hitch on again, the force of the water drove the Merrimac against the hull of the sloop. A large hole was stove in, which caused the craft to fill with water. She sank in several fathoms of water in a few [illegible]. The wood floated off, and at present is [illegible] for miles around the bar or strand and along the beach. None of the wood has been recovered, and the loss will be total. At low tide the sloop is out of water. Without much labor or expense the damage can be repaired and the sunken craft raised again.

New Buildings.—Mr T. M Richardson, the well known contractor and builder, is at present engaged in constructing a row of brick [illegible] extending along the east side of [illegible] from Salmon down to the row which has been erected by Mr Johnson. The [illegible] divided into store rooms, each 20x75 feet and 17 feet in the clear. Iron fronts will be [illegible] a fire-proof roof. The row will [illegible] one story high. Contrasting with the old wooden tenements that formerly adorned the site before the fire, these buildings will [illegible] a handsome and greatly improved appearance. Already the foundation has been laid, and a number of masons are pushing the work forward. Within two weeks the brick work will be finished. This row is being built by Geo W Vaughn and will be leased as soon as finished. Mr Richardson is also the contractor for the erection of a row of brick buildings—four in number—at the corner of Taylor and Front streets for Mr Vaughn. The buildings are to be one story high. Excavation has been begun for this row and a [illegible] will soon follow.

Died from the Effects.—On Tuesday evening Dr. Kinney returned from McMinnville, [illegible] he was hastily summoned a few days [illegible], to amputate the leg of Mr Fred Smith [illegible] seriously hurt about two weeks ago. One of his legs [illegible] entangled in the machinery and was [illegible] crushed. Am[illegible] for some days. Mortification at length set in along the [illegible] and Dr. Kinney was sent for. On arr[illegible] the surgeon found that the limb would have to be amputated to save the life of the patient. This operation was accom[illegible] without much difficulty. Smith had lost so much blood and suffered so acutely [illegible] that Dr. Kinney was ap[illegible] as to results, and feared that he would not be able to undergo the painful operation. Chloroform was administered, and Smith survived the amputation. But the poor [illegible] did not live more than twenty four hours after the limb was cut off, as Dr Kinney [illegible] by a letter from McMinnville last evening.

Sharp Practice.—By the steamer last night there arrived twenty-one Scandinavian immigrants, and there would have been a much larger crowd had it not been for the villainous conduct of certain hotel runners in San Francisco, who induced twenty one families of immigrants, arriving by railroad on the day that the steamer sailed, to go to hotels with all their [illegible]. In consequence of this they missed the steamer. Some steps should be immediately taken by those most intimately concerned in our immigration interests to prevent immigrants from thus being imposed upon. We are informed that the two parties referred to are composed of the proper material for settlers, and bring considerable money with them. Most of those who arrived last night will start to-day for the Touchet country. Some person interested in the welfare of Oregon should be stationed at San Francisco to prevent a recurrence of such conduct as we have mentioned.

Chasing the Saranac.—Several days ago, while the tug boat Astoria was cruising off the bar, a large vessel was observed some distance out at sea, apparently bound in. Thinking that it was one of the several vessels now due here, the pilot started out for the purpose of bringing her in. For some time the [illegible] steamed away, but apparently did not gain on the vessel. After following the ship about ten or fifteen miles, the pilot discovered that he had been chasing all the time the United States steamer Saranac. This [illegible] was the return from a cruise up the Sound, and was going down to San Francisco. On his discovering his mistake, the pilot turned the prow of the Astoria and came back.

New Roofing.—Workmen began yesterday to place down on the burnt [illegible] the Dixie Thompson [illegible] Mr [illegible] new roofing mat[illegible]. The test is purely experimental, this being the first time the material has been used in this State. This kind of roofing is [illegible] than tin or painted canvas [illegible] superior to either. The only [illegible] the roofing is the question of durability. If the material will stand the [illegible] as well as canvas and tin, its su[illegible] and fact as the cheapness [illegible] feature and should commend [illegible]

New Cars.—A temporary roadway has been laid from the main track near the Clarendon Hotel down to the water's edge at the foot of I street. The object of this is to enable [illegible] which are brought from the east [illegible] to be landed from the barge and rolled up the grade by means of horses. Eleven flat cars were finished a few days ago at the shops and are being brought over. The flat cars have already been [illegible] to the west side of the river, and the remaining three will be brought over. [illegible] These cars are to be used on the Oregon Central Railroad.

Money Order Offices.—The following is a full list of the money order offices in this State: Albany, Ashland, Astoria, Baker City, Canyon City, Corvallis, Dalles, Eugene City, Forest Grove, Harrisburg, Jacksonville, Lafayette, La Grande, Oakland, Oregon City, Portland, Roseburg, Salem, The Dalles, and Umatilla. In Washington Territory: Olympia, Port Townsend, Seattle, Steilacoom, Vancouver, Waitsburg, and Walla Walla. In Idaho: Boise City, Idaho City, Lewiston and Silver City. Cut the list out and preserve it.

Agreeably Surprised.—An inspection was held last evening of the City Rifles at the Washington Guard Armory. After the close of the inspection the Rifles reformed and marched down to their Armory. The hall had been lighted up and the members of the company were agreeably surprised on finding that a number of their lady friends had assembled. The room was soon cleared and the music called in, and dancing indulged in to a late hour of the night.

Coming.—Mr Chas Vivian writes to Mr De Prans that he will shortly visit Portland accompanied by the following artists: G W Foster, the man with the talking hand; Madame Jennie Redfarth, soprano; Master J W McKenzie, the young tenor rubust; and Mr Harry J Lask, pianist. He does not state at what time he expects to arrive, but we presume he will be here next month so as to be able to appear at Salem during the State Fair.

Brick Work Done.—The four small brick buildings that stand at the corner of First and Taylor streets, belonging to Mr Johnson, have been completed, so far as the masonry work is concerned. These buildings are only one story high, 20x85 feet and 17 feet in the clear. They are intended to be occupied as store rooms and shops of various kinds. Soon the roofs will be put on, the interior finished, and the buildings will be ready for occupancy.

Runaway.—Yesterday afternoon while a Mr Edelman, in company with Mr Sanders and his little boy, was driving down Jefferson street, the horses became unmanageable and made a bee line towards the river at a 2:40 gait, but, fortunately, the team made a sudden turn a block distant from the bank, spilling the occupants. With the exception of a few bruises and breaking of the buggy, nothing serious happened.

Elk Horns.—Mr Wm Honeyman, of this city, received yesterday on the Annie Stewart a pair of elk horns weighing twenty four pounds. The elk from which they were taken was killed by him while he was rusticating on the coast. It was aged six years at the time of its demise, as our informant states.

Number of Inmates.—There are now confined in the Insane Asylum 183 patients—male and female included. For the last few weeks there has been no patients received or discharged from the institution. The greatest number of patients at any previous time in the history of the institution was 182.

Adjourned.—On Tuesday the County Court adjourned for the term. Considerable business of importance was transacted, and the usual complement of bills were audited.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Messrs Emil Lowenstein & Co have decided to close out their stock of carpets, curtains, etc at cost. They will open in new quarters soon, and do not wish to have any old stock on hand. Here is a splendid opportunity to purchase. See the notice in another column.

One of the most complimentary testimonials the Burdett Organs have yet received was that sent from Frank Gilder, the eminent American pianist of the Madame Anna Bishop Concert Troupe, to Geo L DeFrans, manager of [illegible] Music Store. So many testimonials have been written about the "Burdett" that any additional are unnecessary.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We are now getting in the way a new and fresh stock of fine furniture, which will be superior in quality and lower in design than the one destroyed by the fire, and which we will offer for sale on advantageous terms. Meanwhile we are well prepared to supply the present demand from our temporary location, corner of Fifth and Taylor streets, near the U S Custom House. Respectfully,

A WONDERFUL CLOCK

(or of the Philadelphia Press)

SHAMOKIN Pa, Aug 30 Karl Ketter a poor German [illegible] who has started within a few miles of the borough has still [illegible] a clock here during the past week of a most remarkable character. He had been three years constructing it [illegible] two years at intervals of time and the last year he worked at it day and night scarcely taking time enough to sleep and eat. He became almost a monomaniac on the subject. [illegible] was in his mind during his walking hours and in his dreams at night. He occupied alone a small wooden shanty where he worked [illegible] and [illegible]. Whatever sleeping and [illegible] was but little. [illegible] the kindly interest [illegible] in him and his clock [illegible] and encouraged him in his labors. The clock which was made with no other tools than two common jack knives [illegible] feet broad. Its frame is of the Gothic style of architecture. It [illegible] is surmounted by a globe [illegible] attached a small [illegible]. On the front of the clock there are four dial plates, one shows the day of the week, another shows the day of the month, another shows the minutes and the [illegible] of a minute and the other the [illegible] day. These dials are carved in a most unique manner having emblematic figures upon them and around them [illegible] most every imaginable description. Above the dial plates is a semi-circular gallery extending around about half the width of the framework of the clock. Immediately in front, in the centre of this semi-circular gallery is the carved wooden figure of our Saviour. At the end of the gallery on either side there is a small door opening to the body of the clock. Over the door on the left hand side of the clock as you stand facing it is an eagle. Over the door on the right hand side is a cock. Twice a day—that is at 12:05 in the day and at 12:05 at night—a sweet chime of bells begins to play, the small door on the right hand side opens and the small wooden figures, admirably carved, of the twelve apostles appear and walk out slowly and gravely in procession, Peter in the lead. Advancing along the gallery until they get opposite the figure of Jesus each in turn except Judas slowly turns round and bows his head to the Master, then recovers his former position as Peter does this the cock crows. They continue to advance to the other side of the gallery and enter the small door on the left. As Judas (who is in the [illegible] right hand [illegible] his face and [illegible] hand clasping the bag which is supposed to contain the thirty pieces of silver comes in full view of the clock, the cock crows again. By a simple arrangement this procession can be made to come out and pass around the gallery at any time desired. On pedestals at the extreme corners of the front of the clock are carved wooden statues of Moses and Elias. In the rear are two obelisks of the Egyptian style upon which are carved hieroglyphic characters to represent the ancient periods of the world's history. The clock will run thirty two hours without winding. Mr Ketter who is a native of Freiburg in Baden is very proud of this workmanship. He can scarcely bear to be away from it long enough to eat his meals. He has been offered $10,000 for it by a person from New York, but he [illegible] had often heard of the celebrated clock in Strasburg, but he never saw [illegible] knowledge of how it was constructed [illegible] he ever had any instruction in mechanics of any kind. His purpose is to exhibit it, for a few months in this country, and then take it with him to Germany.

JAPAN FANS

Many of these [illegible] are illustrations of national [illegible], fairy tales, and historic legends. On [illegible] reverse, for [illegible] across the disk is a slack-rope, on it is a nondescript dancing and below a half-kneeling figure represents the juggler or showman. He is gesticulating wildly with his fan, his mouth is wide open with well-simulated astonishment at the [illegible] of the [illegible] on the slack-rope. This performer is like [illegible]; yet it resembles a [illegible] kettle. Its body is the kettle one cunningly curved paw is the spout, another which swings the inevitable umbrella, is the [illegible] and [illegible] form the tripod on which the kettle sits. The story of The Accomplished Tea Kettle is [illegible] old, and [illegible] versions of it form a staple drama, [illegible] or artistic diversion of the Japanese. Briefly, it is related that a company of [illegible], who [illegible] themselves in a temple were affrighted by their tea kettle suddenly becoming [illegible] with fur and [illegible] about the room. It bothered them very much by its pranks, being part of the time a useful and sober culinary utensil and partly a mischievous badger. Catching it and shutting it up in a box, they sold it to a [illegible] tinker for a trifle, thinking themselves well rid of it. But the [illegible] when he found what a bargain he had gotten shrewdly put his bewitched tea-kettle to good account. He [illegible] exhibiting his wonderful beast, which diligently performed on the slack-rope. Princes and nobles came in throngs to see his show and so he made himself very rich by his unique entertainment. The lucky tinker and his accomplished tea kettle furnish forth adventures for the Japanese play-goer as numerous and various as those of our own Humpty Dumpty dear to the heart of every English-speaking child. On the reverse of another fan you discover an illustration of fairy lore. A hare and a badger grotesquely dressed in watermen's garb are each [illegible] sheet of water. They glare at each other defiantly, but the hare, notwithstanding he keeps his simple expression, seems to have the advantage of the other. The hare and the badger in the story of The Crackling Mountain were old foes and had many a tussle, in which the hare usually got the better of his adversary. Finally the hare having built a wooden boat, set off on a voyage to the capital of the moon inviting his enemy to accompany him. The wary badger refused but building a boat of clay he followed the hare. The waves washed the clay so that it began to dissolve, then the hare paddling his craft full upon the luckless badger crushed his sinking boat, and the wicked animal perished miserably in the waters. In these fanciful [illegible] [illegible] Hokusai, a Japanese artist, says an intelligent writer on Asiatic art has modestly protested that it is more easy to draw things one has never seen than to [illegible] with which everybody is familiar. But these fantastic creations of the imagination are all so carefully and characteristically limned that they deceive by their realism. You think that these odd creatures must have been studied from life. You pay an unconscious tribute to the artist's wise interpretation of nature, for his fundamental idea is natural.—North Brown, Scribner's for September.

SELLING A CONSTABLE

A certain constable a short time since, espied a tin peddler pursuing his trade, and like a pickerel after a minnow he rushed after him and inquired:

"Have you a license to sell?"

"No," [illegible] replied the itinerant vendor of pots and pans, "I haven't."

"Well, sir, I'll attend to your case," says the Dogberry.

"All right," said the peddler.

The eager officer rushed to the nearest trial justice and obtained a warrant, and armed and equipped with the awful document starts in chase after the offending itinerant. Some time next day—we believe the next day—after a long chase the representative Yankee was found and hustled before the justice who read to him the warrant, and as a matter of form asked him whether he was guilty.

"Not guilty," says the unabashed peddler.

The justice and constable opened wide their eyes at such contumacy. They had [illegible] in the habit of seeing such.

"Not guilty," quoted the former. "Don't you peddle goods [illegible]?"

"Yes," replied the [illegible].

"Well have you a license?" [illegible] [illegible] thus in sarcastic tones.

"Oh yes," says the traveller.

"Why," says the justice [illegible] coming over his [illegible] didn't you tell this gentleman that you had no license?"

"No sir."

"Yes you did," shouted Tipstaff.

"No I didn't," quietly replied the peddler.

"I say you did," vociferated the peddler.

"I swear I didn't," still persists the peddler.

"Well, what did you tell me then?"

"You asked me if I had a license to sell and I told you I hadn't a license to sell [illegible] but the peddler in an [illegible] tone, "for I wanted it to peddle with."

The World's Carrying Trade

[illegible] for the carrying trade of the world [illegible] between the United States and Great Britain [illegible] progress was made by the former during the first ten years of that period. France and Germany then entered into the competition but their rivalry was never such as to cause any fear [illegible] supremacy. America was gradually but surely gaining upon her competitors and would [illegible] have continued to do so [illegible] the war when nearly all the [illegible] of freight carrying and the ships owned by American citizens were transferred to and afterwards built under the British flag. [illegible] the four years of the war during which time ship building, other than for [illegible] purposes was practically abandoned must be added the time that has since elapsed which has been devoted to the work of political and industrial [illegible] and during this time but little [illegible] has been paid to ship building. It will thus be readily seen that England has obtained a great start in the race.

[illegible] however only for the [illegible] building and carrying trade between Europe and the American continent on the Atlantic [illegible] between the American continent and Japan on the Pacific. For the latter America [illegible] than equal chances, as from the impetus lately brought into existence in its ship yards from the number of ships lately constructed from wealth of resources and aptitude in utilizing means to ends we may safely count upon the business of transporting both [illegible] on the Pacific coast.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The activity in our market [illegible] noted continues with but little abatement [illegible] present necessities of buyers are more nearly supplied, and they are scarcely urging matters with such ardor as a few days ago. Several large purchases are noticed on terms private but which we have good reason to believe were made at, at least [illegible] per cental delivered here in sacks. The delivery however must be immediate, or for this month as exporters feel unwilling to operate on long time contracts or to purchase lots run to from inland [illegible] means of transportation. As will be seen by our telegrams prices in San Francisco continue to advance. Buyers will find it a very difficult matter to secure cargoes at any reduction for some time to come even though prices at Liverpool should remain at their present standard or recede. Should we witness a temporary scarcity of tonnage on the [illegible] of the failure of expected vessels to arrive it will likely be attended by a sort of deadlock in the market [illegible] and exporters refusing [illegible] any special [illegible].

FLOUR—An might have been expected on account of the advance in wheat the price of flour has risen to $6 50 for best brands with a corresponding increase in rates for lower grades. The unusual demand upon all the available means of inland transportation to move the large purchases of wheat has somewhat shortened receipts.

OATS—The demand for the local trade is fair but the principal attention in grain circles being turned to wheat, oats are less sought after than usual at this season though prices are firm and all lots of choice offering are freely taken at [illegible] per bushel.

BARLEY—The new crop is coming to hand very slowly and quotations are reported dull at $1 40 per hundred pounds. The demand for local consumption is brisk but limited in extent.

FEED—We quote bran offering at the mill at $[illegible] per ton. Our market for chopped is quotable $[illegible] per ton shorts $18a20.

HAY—With some call for local consumption and the usual supply our market is tolerably active. Prices for good baled timothy are firm at $[illegible] per ton loose, $10a11.

POTATOES—The supply is well kept up by wagons and boats and we quote common to choice at [illegible] per bushel.

ONIONS—Receipts light and quotable firm at 2a2½.

APPLES—This product both in point of quantity and quality is largely in excess of last year's crop. [illegible] forward varieties are in good supply at prices that would then have been [illegible] more than cheap. We quote best in neat boxes at [illegible] cents per box. Common varieties from wagons [illegible].

BACON—We note no movement of consequence in the market, the supply on hand is still considerable but is being gradually [illegible] off at the old prices. The receipts are very light.

LARD—Fresh or pure Oregon lard in tins is readily sold in the market at 12a13c ₰ lb. In kegs is quotable at 10a11½c.

BUTTER—There is no change since our last report. Prices for best qualities favor the seller while inferior lots are offered without takers. We quote common at [illegible], choice, [illegible].

CHEESE—The market is well supplied with a choice article from our State dairies selling at [illegible].

EGGS—There is no [illegible] demand and quotations are weak at [illegible] from first hands.

CHICKENS—The trade is fairly supplied at [illegible] per dozen for spring and $[illegible] for grown with chances for an advance on choice lots of the latter.

HIDES—The quotations to-day are [illegible] for green salted and [illegible] for [illegible]. Damaged lots must suffer a reduction of [illegible] per cent.

WOOL—Our market is quiet as but little of this staple is offering. [illegible] 24a28 cents ₰ lb for choice quality, common quotable at 20 cents.

SMALL POX.

DOCTOR BORZEAU'S SMALL POX REMEDY. SAMUEL CORWIN, Proprietor, can be procured at all the Drug stores in this city at the present time. As this medicine is proving an inestimable boon to those afflicted with that disease, no person should neglect the present opportunity of providing themselves with this valuable antidote. Price ONE DOLLAR per bottle.

Portland Oregon Aug 22 1873.

MR SAMUEL CORWIN—Sir: In justice to yourself and for the benefit of those who may be afflicted with the small pox I am induced to give publicity to the following facts. About the 25th of July 1873 I became very unwell having severe pain in my head back and limbs which continued to increase in severity for three or four days. A very high fever set in and I began to break out on my face, neck and body with what proved to be small pox. [illegible] of the Central Drug Store [illegible] bottle of your small pox remedy. Notwithstanding the severity of the attack I administered the medicine myself not having [illegible] other [illegible]. In three days all [illegible] fever disappeared. My recovery was extremely rapid notwithstanding frequent exposures by moving about from place to place while in a high fever which is generally considered fatal in this disease, and it is my firm conviction that under the ordinary treatment for that [illegible] I would not be living to-day. I took of the medicine about two and a half bottles or perhaps more than was necessary, not wishing to discontinue until a thorough cure was effected.

PETER BURK

I know of my own knowledge that the foregoing is true in every particular.
